

Leading and Managing for Results Model

When applied consistently, good leading and managing practices strengthen organizational capacity and result in higher-quality services and sustained improvements in health.